

転職サイト20代アンケート結果

The image displays a large grid of data points, likely representing survey results for 20s job seekers on various job sites. The grid is organized into columns and rows, with a header row at the top. The data points are represented by small, faint markings, possibly indicating the frequency or intensity of responses for each category. The grid is mostly empty, suggesting that the data points are very small or that the survey results are sparse. The overall layout is a large, rectangular area filled with a grid of small, faint markings, possibly representing a heatmap or a very small font table.